我们可以从雅思评分标准里面得知, TR是唯一的分档标准, TR好, 一般CC就好; 这是因为考官要在3分钟里面改完一篇作文。而CC是TR的标志, 而且如果TR的思路OK, CC也契合 (例如句子之间的逻辑关系契合的话, 那么TR不会低)

任务回应 (TR) 5.5-6.0 立场模糊, 没回应题目。第一个观点句不是很清晰, 论证深度不足, 例子较为单薄, 结论段有重复。

连贯与衔接 (CC) 6 段落结构, 有连接词使用。但部分连接词使用不准确 (如 Namely) , 段落内部逻辑跳跃。

6句原因段

One of the primary driving forces behind the rude behaviour in modern society is the popularity and anonymity of internet. This is largely due to the fact that people may spread their hatred speeches online, which consequently leads individuals to implement the so-called cyberbully. For instance, even a crazy fan in China can easily be a key-board warrior and enrobe other people's privacy, leading to some terrible and detrimental societal consequences. Another equally significant contributing factor is Atomized Society, which stems from the dynamic population and the emphasis on the private space. This often results in the development of economic needs and the changing lifestyle for most labours and their living desire, such as the setting of quiet carriers and the well-developed delivery system. These two factors, namely internet development and economic factors, collectively underscore the complexity of this issue.

Regading the solutions, the supervision of internet companies and the relevant platforms can play a crucial role in mitigating the problem. For example, introducing the policies and management rules in protecting the privacy online can equip all citizens with the necessary tools to guarantee their rights. In 2019, the Chinese government introduced the laws to secure the individual privacy and reducing the emergency of any cyberbully situations. In addition to the offline efforts, increasing community connection is equally imperative. Encouraging the contribution of the third space can provide opportunities for residents to communicate with each other, which in turn promotes their deeper socializing. Therefore, a synergy between institutions and governments can contribute to a more harmonious society.

开头: With technology advances(要体现进步就得用advances而不是development),the diversification of entertainment options and workforces' increasing emphasis on cost-effectiveness , the decrease of people visiting art galleries has profound implications for individuals and society alike. This essay will first analyse the two dominant underlying causes of this trend and then evaluate its potential solutions.

One of the primary driving forces behind the decrease is the rapidly advance of technology and the diversification of people's entertainment options. Specifically, the growing popularity of the Internet and augmented reality make everyone appreciate artworks without visiting art museums. As an illustration , many China's art galleries have digitalized the artworks in their online galleries and displayed the artworks through the augmented reality technologies. Another equally significant contributing factor is visiting art galleries on purpose is quite mentally and physically costly to the middle class , who is the important one of the major consumers' group of the art museums. For instance, more and more American and European middle-class families preferred entertained resorts , which can provide more recreational values, to art galleries or historic sites which required not only to experience them offline , but also required a lot on visitors' thought and self-inspiration. These two factors, in other word, the technology and the ways of entertaining development , the increasing cost-awareness of main consumers' group factors, collectively underscore the complexity of this issue.

Regarding the solutions, both enhancing visitors' cultural experience through in-person activities and expanding the consumers' group appreciating art galleries can play a crucial role in mitigating the problem. For instance, museums in China raised a new trend to draw peoples' attention back to the museums by introducing more in-person activities such as collecting stamps, scripted role-playing games and special exhibitions. The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York provides guided tours for visitors to help visitors to gain a deeper understanding of historical artworks. In addition to the above efforts, expanding the consumers' group is equally imperative. In China, the art galleries offer programs including art schools, field trips and corporate team-building activities. Therefore, institutions can contribute to improving people's art literacy and preserving the human valuable works of art.

In conclusion, the essay has identified the technology development, the diversification of entertainment options and as key reasons for the decrease of people visiting art galleries. Solutions such as enhancing visitors' cultural experience and expanding the consumers' group can effectively address these issues. Personally, I believe that a concerted effort from both institution and citizens can lead to a significant improvement in the preservation of the human valuable works of art.
